

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has SIGNIFICANTLY improved our time at home. Indiana's law has been very effective. We would sometimes get up to 6 calls an hour during peak times. It was not unusual to get over up to 20 calls a day. Now it is unusual to get a telemarketing call. Also, it was so bad we had to get caller ID just to screen our calls. Telemarketing was becoming very disruptive to our family life until the Indiana law was implemented. It is reasonable to have a federal law to establish minimum standards but states should be allowed to have stricter laws to protect its citizens!
